More About the Pay As You Earn Repayment Plan

Account: EXXXXX0048

Dear JACK,

Thank you for inquiring about income-driven repayment \(IDR\) plans for your federal student loans. Based on your discussion with us recently, we believe the Pay As You Earn (PAYE) Plan is the best fit for you. Whether you're applying for PAYE for the first time, requesting an annual recertification of your income on the plan, or asking that we recalculate your PAYE regular monthly payment amount, you'll find the steps you need to take here.

How to Apply Online (New Applicants)

1. Visit StudentAid.gov/idr.
2. Choose the "Log In to Start" button under New IDR Applicants.
3. Log in with your email, phone, or FSA ID username and StudentAid.gov password, or choose "Create an Account."
4. Follow the instructions online to complete your application.
 - You can select the option within the application to securely retrieve your most recent tax return information from the IRS online, which may expedite our review of your application.
5. Electronically sign the application.

How to Submit Your Annual Recertification

If your loans are already on the PAYE Plan and you are submitting income documentation for your annual recertification, visit StudentAid.gov/idr and choose the "Log In to Start" button under Returning IDR Borrowers. Then log in and follow the instructions online to complete your application.

How to Request Recalculation of Your Payment Amount

If you wish to have your regular monthly payment amount on this plan recalculated because your income or family size recently changed, visit StudentAid.gov/idr and choose the "Log In to Start" button under Returning IDR Borrowers. Then log in and follow the instructions online to complete your application.

Processing Your Request

Once we've received your complete application and income documentation, we'll review your request and send you an email or letter with the outcome of our review.
